Preceding the rally, Tubbs' Military band gave a concert in front of the town hall, and just before the rally was opened the band played the Star Spangled Banner, which brought everyone immediately to their feet.

A number of the members of the first aid class of the Red Cross who have been taking a course at the first aid class of the Red Cross who have been taking a course at the Backus hospital in Red Cross first aid work were dressed in costume, adding much to the interest of the gathering. Those dressed in Red Cross uniforms were Misses Olive Huntington, Edith Young, Florence Williams, Katherine Brown, Ruth Hamilton, Helen Hamilton and Mrs. Arthur Bunnell and Mrs. Prank Eaton.

> Red Cross Call Doubly Strong. The call of the Red Cross is doubly atrong, not only to our sense of pa-triotism but to our sense of love for tellow man. In these days we have many opportunities to give and espe-cially since this world wide war was started. I believe there is no appeal which touches anyone so deeply as that of the Red Cross. My fear is that our people won't wake up to the fact that we are in war and a war in which that we are in war and a war in which every one must do his part, and I am sure that the city of Norwich as well as other cities in the state will do their part. Mayor Brown expressed hope that the people of the city will respond to all worthy calls of patriotism and the call of the Red Cross.

chapter in the country.

Next Mr. Leavens introduced General William A. Aiken, who emphasized in his remarks three topics: The Red Cross, why organized; the American Red Cross, what it is: the Norwich Red Cross, what it ought to be.

Wounded Left to Die. General Alken made reference to a noted French author who in a book described a European conflict and he notes that in this war there were no litter bearers. The wounded were left where they dropped and the infantry in a charge trampled on the wounded and the cavilry ground the wounded and the cavilry ground the wounded into the earth. When he saw this ghastly spectacle of wounded lying on the field, he was filled with horror because of the lack of what we call first aid work. The statistics of this war show that the loss of life was terrific and he was convinced that there must be an organization, the object of which is to conserve human life and save the nation lives of men which are thrown away. The American Red Cross, what it, is and what it is not, are important things for us. It is not a part of the United States army, it is national and the highest officer is the president of the United States are officio. It supplants the one with which was connected with the Civil war, and which was formed in '61. General Alken read figures of comparison of the Red Cross in the Boxer war in China and of the work conducted by Japan's contingent, When Japan ese contingent was extraordinarily effective.

Not Whelly War Organization. General Aiken made reference to a noted French author who in a book

Not Wholly War Organization. The American Red Cross on the other hand is not wholly a war organization. It is a peace organization as well as in the times of fires, earthquakes, floods, etc., it lends aid. General Aiken urged his audience to join the Red Cross. the Red Cross.

The next speaker was Mrs. Rosemary Anderson of New London who is general chairman of the campaign committee of the New London chapter of the Red Cross. Mrs. Anderson said that she felt like an infant after were Misses Olive Huntington, Beliffer of the Red Cross, presided and Mrs. Florence Williams, Katherine, Brown, Ruth Hamilton, Helen Hamilton, Brown, Ruth Hamilton, Helen Hamilton, Hood and Mrs. Arthur Bunnell and Mrs. Frank Eaton.

In the near future the chapter will aunch a big membership campaign.

F. J. Leavens, treasurer of the local chapter of the Red Cross, presided and contact with the meeting and introduced His Honor Mayor Aliyn L. Brown. Mayor Brown referred to the fact that the work of the Red Cross is not appreciated and that many people have thought little of its importance. The general idea that people have it that it is simply an organization that is used in time of war. Fortunately our country has seen only a few months of war in the lives of the majority of us. The Red Cross conducts and has conducted a very important work in time of peace as well as war. The time is here now and everyone realizes the grand opportant work in time of peace as well as war. The time is here now and everyone realizes the grand opportant work in time of peace as well as war. The time is here now and everyone realizes the grand opportant work in time of peace as well as war. The time is here now and everyone realizes the grand opportant work in time of peace as well as war. The time is here now and the lives of the National Red Cross. The people of Norwich in the past have shown in devotion to duty, as history tells us, and those of us who remember the Civil war will recall this fact. The milliarry census recently taken is a very convincing example. Norwich and the consus was a population of about 3e,000 and it it was estimated at headquarters in the time of the same out of that stupentiation of the Red Cross. Since 1905 we have spent more than the cross of the Red Cross for the protection of the Norwich would have a p

Oil Used by Railroads. A decided increase in the use of petroleum as locomotive fuel by the railroads of the United States in 1916 is shown by statistics compiled under the supervision of John D. Northrop and just published by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior.

Reports submitted by 53 railroad companies, comprising all that operate oil-burning locomotives in the United States, show that the quantity of all fuel so consumed last year was 42,126,417 barrels, a gain of 5,477,351 barrels, or 15 per cent over the consumption in 1915. This increase shows the steady ex-pansion in the United States of the market for low-grade petroleum from market for low-grade petroleum from Mexico rather than any appreciable increase in the use as fuel of low-gravity crude oils from domestic sources, whose value for refining is just beginning to be recognized.

The total distance covered by oil-burning engines in 1916 was 140,434,566 miles, and the average distance
